World Conditions Steadily Improve

Announcement of the return of Great Britain to the gold standard on April 23 is the most significant event in world economics since the signing of the Armistice. Simultaneous with Great Britain identical action was taken by Australia and New Zealand, Holland and the Dutch East Indies. Canada is already on a gold standard basis and South Africa will revert to the gold standard on July 1.

The effects of this momentous decision was at once seen in the rise of the pound sterling on the New York market to the highest point in ten years and only less than four cents from full par value. Reversion to the gold standard means greater stability in trade and commerce the world over, while the re-appraisal of Canada's currency is of vital importance because the chief difficulty confronting the producers and manufacturers of this country since the close of the war has been the unstable, fluctuating and at times chaotic condition of European markets.

In making the announcement in his budget speech, Mr. Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said: "We have entered on a period on both sides of the Atlantic when political and economic stability seems more assured than it has been for some years."

Return of the gold standard means an end to the enormous loss resulting from the adverse rate of exchange on the English pound sterling in the United States, Canada and other countries. It removes the uncertainty formerly existing in world money markets, and likewise removes what was a severe handicap on all international business.

Now that Canada is becoming more and more an exporting country, the importance of the action of the British Government can hardly be overestimated. As already noted, the chief difficulty confronting the producers of Canada for some years past has been in the marketing of our products abroad, and every step taken to re-establish world confidence and stability in trade and commerce means a benefit to Canada.

Mr. Churchill also announced the re-establishment of the old preferences and the McKenna duties which were abandoned by the Ramsey Macdonald Government, and although this action does not affect food products, because Mr. Churchill remained faithful to Premier Baldwin's promise to abstain from any taxation of food, it will nevertheless prove beneficial to certain Canadian industries, as for example, tobacco, sugar and automobiles.

Of particular interest to the whole British people is the reduction provided in the budget in the Income Tax, which is reduced by sixpence in the pound, thus lightening to that extent the handicap now imposed on British industry by the enormous weight of taxation which must be borne in order to meet the huge interest payments on the war debt and provide for its gradual liquidation. "As in the case of the return to a gold standard, every step taken to reduce the burden of taxation and revive industry throughout the British Isles, thereby lessening unemployment and increasing the purchasing power of the people, means a larger and more stable market for Canadian products."

In a recent interview Sir John Aird, President and General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, stated that while the general conditions in both the United States and Canada were bad, the return of international prosperity was dependent on two things, the settlement of present European financial difficulties and the adoption by the world of a gold basis. "After those two things occur," said Sir John, "progress must be rapid."

With the entire English-speaking world on a gold basis a long step forward has been taken toward the realization of these two essentials to world-wide business development and prosperity.

Canadian Cheese

One-third of Cheese Imported by Britain Supplied by Canada

Canada supplied one-third of the cheese imported into Great Britain during the last three years. In that period, of 939,383,200 lbs. of cheese imported by Great Britain, Canada supplied 331,142,588 lbs. Canada's exports of cheese to the Mother Country are increasing yearly, although prices for the best Canadian cheese actually run from four to eight shillings per long hundredweight higher than for New Zealand cheese.

Would Have Baron Byng Remain

Governor-General is Invited To Accept a Second Term of Office

It is understood on good authority that Baron Byng will be invited to serve a second term as governor-general of Canada. His five-year term expires in July, 1926, and it now appears very possible that he will remain for a further term. There has been much speculation as to who will succeed Baron Byng. Whether or not he will succeed himself now seems to be a matter for his own choice.

Arab Idea Not Original

Wearing Mourning As Mark of Disapproval Has Been Done Before

The Arabs who wear mourning to signify their disapproval of Lord Balfour's visit to Palestine have not hit on any very new idea. In England the same plan has been tried by civil servants. In 1897, on April 1, the recommendations of the Tweedmouth committee were brought into force in the post office. On the day the scheme became operative the men attended the various offices wearing black ties, and the women operators wore crepe bands.

For chest colds, pain in the side, stiff neck, varicose veins, headache, I have found it invaluable. French Will Construct Huge Aeroplane Base

Machines Will Be Shot Into Air By Catapult System

A huge aeroplane base is to be constructed by the French Government at Chichibourg, sixty miles from the nearest point on the English coast and only 150 miles from London. It is being built with the idea that a European war cannot come within ten years, and it will have provisions to make it effective against inventions that may be developed during that time. Monitors fighting machines carrying tons of gas bombs, which can kill off most of London's population within a few hours, will be housed underground, protected by steel embankments that can resist any air attack. The difficulty of having a taking-off field to train aeroplanes up, will be obviated by arranging a catapult system by which machines will be shot into the air.

Gave Name to Douglas Fir

Trees Were Discovered in Oregon 100 Years Ago By David Douglas

One hundred years ago April 7, 1825, David Douglas discovered Douglas Fir, the tree that bears his name. In 1825 Douglas was surveying the Oregon territory, now the state of Oregon, but at that time British territory, on behalf of the Royal Horticultural Society of England, and first came across samples of the famous tree that was to bear his name. Douglas was very much impressed at the time by the virtues of Douglas Fir and in his journal notations show that he measured specimens 48 feet in circumference and 227 feet high.

Sixty-two billion tons of Coal in Alberta

Sixty-two billion tons of coal, half of this amount recoverable, lie beneath the surface of Alberta soil, according to Professor J. A. Allan, provincial geologist and head of the University of Alberta, in a statement made before the Alberta coal commission. The commission was also told that $12,000,000 had been lost by the abandonment of coal mines during the past 20 years.

Canada Popular with Swedish

On account of the large population of Sweden, compared to its size and also because of the extraordinary similarity of climate, the will, undoubtedly, at all times be a steady flow of Swedish settlers to western Canada announced Harry Macfie, of Lysekil, Sweden, one of the pioneers of the Yukon gold rush of 1897, in Winnipeg recently. Mr. Macfie, whose father was a Scotsman and his mother a Swedish lady, is visiting Canada as representative of the Semi-Diesel engine works at Lysekil and is renewing acquaintance with a country which, as a young man, he knew from coast to coast. "Anti-Canadian propaganda," said Mr. Macfie, "will never make headway in Sweden, because Swedes have always done well in Canada and this fact is known to everyone in the homeland. In two years' time, when the Swedish quota to the United States is automatically reduced, Canada will benefit very considerably as Swedish settlers will naturally come to this country instead." During his residence in Canada, Mr. Macfie took a trip to the Hudson Bay and was much impressed with the possibilities of coal and oil finds in that district, which he states is similar in formation to the Athabasca country. He says he would not be surprised if both were discovered in commercial quantities.

Large Dairy Enterprise Started

With the arrival of 500 Holsteins at Marchand, Manitoba, last week over Canadian National lines, a practical start has been made with the big dairy proposition of the Manitoba Dairy Farms Limited. The cows were purchased in Quebec by Prof. Crane, formerly of Idaho, who is in charge of the enterprise. Several families have been placed on the land there and 25 from Denmark are on the way. It is expected that the number will be considerably increased in a short time and a large amount of business is anticipated this summer.

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini
"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitagraph picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS

Captain Peter Blood, a buccaneer, rescues Arabella Bishop, with whom he is in love and Lord Wade, an emissary of King James, from two Spanish ships. Lord Wade offers his commission in the James, but the buccaneer has been sent as a slave to the Barbadoes by this same King and he declines. To place Arabella in safety he turns into a member of the British fleet commanded by Colonel Bishop, governor of Barbadoes, whom Blood had once made walk the plank. Blood's crew turn him over to the crew, but Blood orders the ship to return to the Barbadoes where he may be landed safely.

"Again you misapprehend me," cried Lord Julian, "between concern and indignation. That is not intended. Your followings will be included in your commissioning."

"And dye think they'll go with me to hunt their brethren—the Brethren of the Coast? I dye think I could take a commission of King James's? I tell you I wouldn't be solting my hands with—thief and pirate's hands, though they be. Thief and pirate is what you heard Miss Bishop call me today—a thing of scorn, an outcast. And who made me that? Who made me thief and pirate?" Dye dream, man; what it is to be a slave? But there! I grow hot for nothing at all. I explain myself, I think, and God knows—it is my custom. I am grateful to you, Lord Julian, for your kindly invitation. I am so, but you'll understand, perhaps, I've looked as if ye might."

Lord Julian stood a moment, watching the tall figure as it moved away towards the infirmary. Then letting his arms fall helplessly to his sides in dejection, he departed.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Service of King James'

Miss Arabella Bishop was aroused very early on the following morning by the braveness of a bugle and the insistent clanging of a bell in the ship's belfry. In his cabin Lord Julian was already astir and hurriedly dressing. About him in the wails, where all last night had been so peaceful, there was a friendly active bustle of some

DOCTOR ADVISED AN OPERATION

Read Alberta Woman's Experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Provost, Alberta.—"Perhaps you will remember sending me one of your books a year ago. I was in a bad condition and would suffer awful pains at times and could not do anything. The doctor said I could not have children and must undergo an operation. I read testimonials of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my husband and friend recommended me to take it. After taking three bottles I became much better and now I have a bonny baby girl four months old. My husband and I are both a little with the chores. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friend and am telling you for to use this wonderful medicine. Yours truly, A. A. ADAMS, Box 54, Provost, Alberta."

Lachine, Quebec.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my left side and heartburn with weakness and other trouble. When I got well again I was this way about six months. I saw the Vegetable Compound advertised in the Standard and I have taken four bottles since. I am a sick woman and I feel so much better I could not be without it. I also use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Wash. I recommend the medicines to my friends and I am willing for you to use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. M. W. Rose, 26 Notre Dame St., Lachine, Quebec.

thrice-score men. By the rail, immediately above and behind Lord Julian, stood Captain Blood in alteration with a one-eyed giant, whose head was swathed in a red cotton kerchief, whose blue shirt hung open to the waist. As his lordship, moving forward, revealed himself, their voices ceased and Blood turned to meet him.

"Good morning to you," he said, and added: "We're quartered badly, so I have. I should have known better than to come so late to Jamaica by night. But I was in haste to land you. Come up here. I have something to show you."

Wondering, Lord Julian mounted the companion as he was bidden. Standing beside Captain Blood, he looked astern, following the indication of the Captain's hand, and cried in amazement. There, not more than three miles away, was land—an uneven wall of vivid green that filled the western horizon. And a couple of miles this side of it, bearing after them, came speeding three great white ships.

Wolverstone looked down sardonically upon Lord Julian. "So that you're like to be in yet another fight before ye've done wif ships, my lord."

"That's a point we were just arguing," said Blood. "For I hold that we're in no case to fight against such odds."

"The odds be damned!" Wolverstone thrust out his heavy jaw. "We've used us to odds. The odds was out, and took three ships. They was heavier yesterday when we engaged Don Miguel."

"Aye—but those were Spaniards."

"What a better bare are these?—Are ye a'ard of a lubberly Barbardos plant?"

"Never aye, Peter. Peter? I've never known ye scared afore."

A gun boomed out behind them.

"That'll be the signal to lie to," said Blood, in the same hateless voice; and he fetched a sigh.

Wolverstone squared himself before his captain.

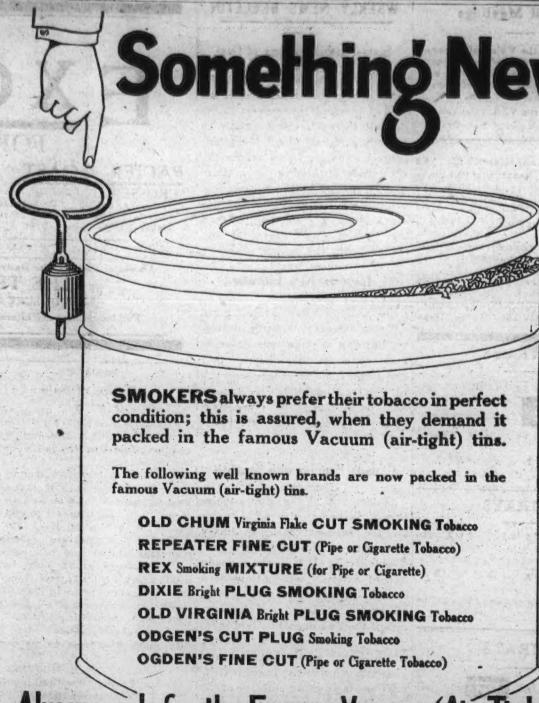

"I'll see Colonel Bishop in hell or ever I lies to him."

"Oh, but—by your leave," his lordship interceded, "surely there is nothing to be apprehended from Colonel Bishop."

Considering the service you have rendered to his niece and to me . . . I assure you that my word counts for something in England."

"Aye—in England. But this ain't England, damme," Wolverstone laughed.

Came the roar of a second gun, and a round shot splashed the water less than half a cable's length astern,

Blood leaned over the rail to speak to the fair young man immediately below him by the helmsman at the whitstaff. "Bid them take in sail, Jeremy," he said quietly. "We lie to." But Wolverstone interposed again.

"Hold there a moment, Jeremy!" he roared. "Wait!" Captain and loyal follower faced, their glances met, suddenly braving dull anger, surprise and pain.

"There is no question," said Blood, "or surrendre for any man aboard save only myself." If Bishop can report to England that a man taken and hanged, he will magnify his own importance.

He turned to the poop, and Pitt immediately below him, the poor, followed by Ogle, was summoned to observe. Some moments ago Ogle followed by the main body of his peasant crew, had emerged from the bosky hatch, fell into muttered, angrily vehement talk with those who, abandoning the gun-tackles upon which they were laboring, had come to crowd about him.

Even now Blood had no eyes for that. He turned to look at Miss Bishop, marvelling a little, after the manner in which yesterday she had avoided him, that she should now venture upon the quarter-deck. Her presence at this moment, and considering the nature of his altercation with Wolverstone, was embarrassing.

Captain Blood bared his head and bowed silently in a greeting which she returned composedly and formally.

"What is happening, Lord Julian?" he enquired.

As to answer her a third gun spoke from the shore.

"They are ships of the Jamacia fleet," his lordship answered laconically.

Before more could be added, their attention was drawn at last to Ogle, who came bounding up the broad ladder, and to the men lancing out in his wake. Blood, confronted him.

"What's this?" the Captain demanded sharply. "Your station is on the gun-deck. Why have you left it?"

"Captain," Ogle said, and as he spoke he pointed to the pursuing ships, "Colonel Bishop holds us. We're in no case either to run or fight."

"Ogle," said he, "in a voice cold and hard as steel, "Your station is on the gun-deck. You'll return to it at once, and take your crew with you, or else . . ."

"Threats will not serve, Captain."

Captain Blood's hand closed over the butt of one of the pistols slung before him.

Alberta's Sunflower Crop

Development of Product Due to Increase in Dairy Industry

One of Alberta's newest crops, sunflowers for silage, amounted to 160,650 tons last year, while fodder corn, also comparatively new, amounted to 269,888 tons. The development of these field products is largely due to the expansion of the dairy industry. Alberta's dairy production last year was valued at close to $23,000,000, and is rapidly increasing. Britain is providing an attractive market for butter, and cheese is finding an increasing demand.

PREFERABLE TO KEEP SEPARATE RAILWAY LOANS

Ottawa—Differing sharply from critics of the budget, Herbert Marler, Liberal, St. Lawrence-St. George, Montreal, held, in the house, that the financial statement presented by Hon. J. A. Bob, acting minister of finance, was "clear to analyse and clear in its effect." He did not agree that railway loans should be included in the total of net consolidated debt. Operation of the National Railways had been "an extremely expensive matter" for the people of the Dominion, but, while our railway debt was a debt of the Dominion, Mr. Marler thought it was another matter that it should be included in the consolidated debt.

For one reason, Mr. Marler argued, the question of public ownership was on trial, and if, at any subsequent date, it was terminated, "would be unable to prove that our railway debt kept separate from our other financial dealings." He submitted, however, that the public should be given each year's statement of the combined debt showing in one part the consolidated debt, with its increases or decreases, and in another part any increase in the railway indebtedness.

Mr. Marler estimated that in the last six years the Dominion had put $55,548,574 of new money into railways. "Member who are so much in favor of public ownership," he added, "for who desire extensions and costly improvements, will pause for a moment and consider how long we can keep up this pace—or how any of them can expect decrease in our taxation if this yearly expenditure is continued." The only way to reduce taxation was to spend less.

Future Peace In Europe

Should Be Based On Goodwill Thinks Sir Esmé Howard

Princeton, N.J.—Reasons for Great Britain's rejection of the Geneva protocol on international arbitration of international disputes and hoped end for future peace in Europe by means of the security pact negotiated by Germany, were outlined by Sir Esmé Howard, British ambassador to the United States, in an address before the English-speaking Union. "It is impossible to say now," he asserted, "how the security pact discussions will end, but we can at least all hope that they may lead to a settlement by agreement and to the establishment of a peace, not dependent upon huge and ruinous armaments, but based on goodwill and common sense."

"If that comes about," Sir Esmé continued, "the next disarmament conference will not be long in coming. Of that we may be sure. If, on the other hand, this hope also fades away and dies, why, then, I frankly do not see how there can be the maintenance of our national security; and what irony to call it security by force of arms and military alliances, which will make crushing taxation, financial ruin and the inevitable armageddon in the end."

Release of British Capital Forshadows a New Era in Canada's Economic Development

Canada has particular cause for gratification in the return of sterling to parity, for it is taken as foreshadowing a new era in the Dominion's economic development. Despite the general industrial upheaval and the wide variety of post-war troubles which confront the British Isles, it has been the general opinion that the depreciated value of British money has been the principal factor in preventing investors of the United Kingdom from making an effort to regain the supreme position they occupied before the war in buying the bonds of Canadian mining and all kinds of Canadian enterprises. On his return from Europe last year, stated: "When exchange is at a parity I feel quite confident that England will support Canadian enterprises and Canadian development will be very extensive."

This feeling and prediction would seem to be supported by recent reports from England following the stabilization of sterling, that London is looking forward to Canada returning there for loans. This should logically be followed by the entry of British funds into the various channels of investment. Canada offers, and Great Britain, in this case, comes to constitute itself a more serious rival of other foreign investors than it has been for some time.

With the almost certain return of British funds in some volume to Canada for investment, the Dominion should stand to benefit by foreign investment to an extent she has not hitherto known. It cannot be conceived that the United States, dwelling in such close proximity, with such a keen knowledge of Canadian resources and opportunity, and with a growing volume of funds for investment abroad, will cease to send them to the same proportion to Canada as she has done for many years. With British money coming into friendly rivalry with them it cannot help but open up for Canada a new and brighter era of development.

Should Grow Barley With Oats

Gives Farmer Higher Returns Than Grain Grown Alone

For six years in succession an experiment was conducted at the Ontario Agricultural College in the growing of oats, barley, spring wheat and peas, separately and in different combinations for the production of grain, says an O. A. C. press bulletin. There were six mixtures having two classes of grain, four having three classes, and one having four classes of grain combination. Of all the mixtures used, barley and oats gave the highest yield per acre, combination producing 152 pounds of threshed grain per acre more than the highest yield of grain grown alone.

Twenty-five years of work indicate that one bushel of oats and one bushel of barley is the best proportion for mixed grain seeding. O. A. C. No. 21 barley and O. A. C. No. 3 oats have made a combination in "grain mixture seeding" that has given yields superior to any other seeding. These two grains reach maturity at the same time.

In accordance with Premier Bracken's plan announced in the legislature during the recent session, the amount received will be put into a trust fund, the revenue from which will be devoted to agricultural research work.

What's Doing in Saskatchewan?

By Walter P. Davison, Author of "Saskatchewan: The Three Poles"

Saskatchewan is a Canadian nation, meaning "Rapid River." In this year of grace, there are millions of busy people in the cities of the United States, in Europe, and even in the province of Saskatchewan signifies, not merely running waters, but "Rivers of Wheat"—and that is the whole story.

In so vast a land as Canada, provincialism seems to be necessary. It is only on comparatively rare occasions that we may in our states think and act in similar terms. He did so in 1865-1867 at the Conference of the Dominion. He did so in every corner of Canada just half a century later. They are imperishable documents:

A philosopher has somewhere said: "You can hold an object so close to your heart that it blots out the rest of the world—or it can be remote enough to you, to be a mere speck in the distance."

The western provinces of Manitoba and Alberta are the western neighbors of vast potential wealth.

There is also the mighty prairie, stretching from British Columbia, from the mountains to the great eastward, there is good old Ontario, settled under traditions of the storied past; wise in its accumulated experience, and still in its infancy in an industrial vitality acquired in the past decade. Beyond, there is Quebec, powerful and populous and courageous—nay, the rock of the Dominion. And, finally, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, with a rich past, and an unusual future for the young and enterprising people on the eastern parts of the nation!

Each of these great human, economic and political units has its own history and blid its story into the national life. Today, let us talk about Saskatchewan.

Following is the established practice of delivering whomever, if unpalatable, the mortal tones "we will not do." We will submit a few illuminating figures in the forefront of this article, and perhaps on to more colorful thoughts.

Last January, 1924, there was held the production of the credit of the $14,000,000 people of Saskatchewan? Here is the stat, in round numbers, representing 90 per cent of the total activities of the province:

	Bushels
Wheat	136,000,000
Oats	97,000,000
Barley	17,000,000
Flax	6,119,000
Butter, lbs.	2,250,000
Stock marketed—	20,000,000
Cattle	193,970
Sheep	218,000
Horses	16,000
Coal mined, tons	500
Protein production	320,000,000
Lumber	2,500,000
Minerals	1,000,000
Fur	500,000

A fairly formidable array of facts, credit to be attributed to the same population at live in the City of Toronto.

Saskatchewan's cities, towns, villages and rural municipalities take in a total settled area of 55,000,000 acres, which works out at slightly over 70 square miles to the head of each man in the province. But this is not all of Saskatchewan. There are still an additional 100,000,000 acres within the provincial boundaries.

Who was the first man to claim the land? What was his name? Who was he?

We Have It On Good Authority
That We Are To Discontinue
THE HOG BUSINESS

Also that we have been buying Hogs and not PAYING WHAT WE ADVERTISE.

Gentlemen! We did not enter the Hog business with the intention of putting anyone out of business, we are not strong enough financially to enter Trade War.

We Flatly and Emphatically Declare that we have invested our money in accommodation and equipment and that money will not lay idle so long as a single customer will patronize us.

Since we entered the business our competitors have learned that they can eliminate yardage and Commission in Calgary. If those people are playing square this should reduce handling charges to our basis, so in that event we deserve credit and support of the people of the district.
